Children's Worship Bulletin

July 22, 2018. Mark 6:30-34, 62-66
“Incredibles 2” – Fourteen years after “The Incredibles” premiered and it seems like only yesterday as “Incredibles 2” picks up right after the first one left off. The family of superheroes is back with the same everyday family issues we all have – Mom’s working, Dad’s at home with the kids, Dash is still his high-spirited self, Violet is just like every other teen with a crush on a boy and baby Jack-Jack’s powers are just starting to emerge. Yes, the everyday family. In traditional Pixar flair, we have another fun family film. Well-written and directed by Brad Bird, with terrific animation, and a cast of wonderful voices for all of these colorful characters. Bring the entire family and enjoy.

“Jurassic World: Fallen Kingdom” – This sequel picks up three years after the destruction of the Jurassic World theme park. Once again bringing together Owen Grady, the dinosaur behaviorist, and Claire Dearing, the dinosaur specialist, for a mission to save the dinosaurs from an erupting volcano. Of course, this is just the cover story for an elaborate plan for a new cloning process. This is the fifth film in the series, with the sixth and final one scheduled to open in 2021. Personally, I was never really fond of dinosaurs (except, perhaps for Dino, the pet dinosaur of Fred and Wilma Flintstone). With each film, they have become more vicious to the point where it can be difficult to watch. Definitely not recommended for young children or the faint of heart. With the introduction of Benjamin Lockwood (well played by James Cromwell) and his granddaughter, however, this film has a new twist which makes it a bit more interesting. The special effects are breathtaking and Chris Pratt, Bryce Dallas Howard and the entire cast are very good.

“Sicario: Day of the Soldado” - Back in 2015, when I saw “Sicario”, I wasn’t sure what to expect. All I knew was Benicio del Toro was one of our finest actors. The film was extremely intense – a raw look at the drug trade and policing the borders and it was tough to watch at times. Now, we have the second film in the series. Its screenwriter, Taylor Sheridan, has become very good at his craft, bringing us well-written films with intriguing characters over the past few years. Once again, del Toro reprises his role as does Josh Brolin. Both actors are terrific and work very well together. This film, however, is even more intense than the first. Bloody and extremely violent. Along with drugs, the cartels now traffic terrorists across the border. We get it. This way of life is vicious and cruel. But, how far do you go to tell the story? How much violence is enough? The sad truth is that there are some very good scenes with strong performances but not many people will see them, because most of the film is just too grim to watch.

“Ant-Man and the Wasp” – The much-anticipated sequel is here at last and well-worth the wait. Scott Lang, aka Ant Man, finds himself compelled once again to help Dr. Hank Pym and his daughter, Hope, aka the Wasp, no matter the cost. There are several story lines running at the same time which are all connected. The difference between this unlikely and reluctant hero and the other Marvel characters is that he knows he has limitations and he doesn’t always succeed. But that’s what makes him so appealing. He means well and he does his best. This film is thrilling, funny, and heart-warming. With a terrific cast and crew but to be honest, it really is Paul Rudd who makes these movies so enjoyable.

“Skyscraper” – Finally, a movie that’s not a sequel. Original you might say, but then again, the plot sounds vaguely familiar. Almost like the first “Die Hard” film meets “Towering Inferno”. Will Sawyer is a former FBI hostage rescue specialist, who now runs a small private security business. The job takes him and his family to the world’s largest skyscraper located in Hong Kong. The bad guys set the building on fire and Will must save his family who are trapped at the top. Perfect vehicle for Dwayne Johnson. Physically, he is larger than life and could battle anything. However, it’s his charm, wit and very likeable charisma that makes his films so entertaining. Edge of your seat exciting, and Robert Elswit’s cinematography and the special effects are spectacular. This movie has one basic theme, love of family. Well, maybe two…101 uses for duct tape. “It’s okay to be scared. In order to be brave, you’ve got to be a little scared.”
